DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 6-12 and 17-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gorden [US 2003/0198137].

Regarding claims 1 and 10, Gorden discloses a personalized alarm clock comprising : an alarm clock [10]; a display [16] housed within said alarm clock; one or more speakers [28] housed within said alarm clock; and a removably attachable video/audio data source having user's video/audio footage stored thereon, said video/audio data source attaches to said alarm clock to input the user's video/audio footage into said alarm clock to be played on said display and/or emitted through said one or more speakers [para [0044]].

Regarding claims 6 and 17, Gorden further discloses that the alarm clock comprising input/output ports [32, 34].

Regarding claims 7, 8, 18 and 19, Gorden discloses that the alarm clock is capable of interfacing with a remote device to provides audio and/or image data [para [0045]].

Regarding claim 9, Gorden discloses that the alarm clock is capable of displaying audio/video data from CD/DVD and other devices. The contained audio/video footage is a personal favorite to that particular individual/user.

Regarding claims 11 and 20, Gorden discloses that the alarm clock further comprises a CD player and a radio [abstract].

Regarding claim 12, Gorden discloses a personalized alarm clock system [10] comprising: a housing [12 and 14]; a removable video/audio data source [CD and/or DVD] which connects to a video/audio data access area positioned within said housing [figure 1; the contained audio/video footage is a personal favorite to that particular individual/user]; a control unit [CPU 42] positioned within said housing, said control unit is operatively connected to said video/audio data source; a display [16] positioned within said housing, said display is operatively connected to said control unit; one or more speakers [28] positioned within said housing, said one or more speakers is operatively connected to said control unit; a plurality of alarm/timing setting members [20, 22, 26] for setting the current time of the alarm clock and for programming the control unit to store the current time, said plurality of alarm/time setting members positioned with said housing [figure 1], said plurality of alarm/timing setting members causes the control unit to display the current time on said display; a plurality of alarm control members [20, 22, 26] positioned within said housing, said plurality of alarm control members program an alarm mode or modes such as a video/audio alarm mode into the control units [para [0065]]; and whereby when said control unit determines that the preset alarm time has arrived and that the video/audio alarm mode has been selected, the control unit will read said selected favorite video footage, video footage with audio and/or audio footage information stored on said video/audio data source and have this information played on said display and/or emitted through said one or more speakers, depending upon whether the information is video footage, video footage with audio, and audio information [para [0029] +].

Regarding claim 21, Gorden discloses the alarm clock comprises a camera [53].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 3, 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gorden in view of Wilska et al. [US 6,427,078].

Regarding claims 2, 3, 13 and 14, Gorden discloses that the video/audio data source can be a digital memory, DVD, CD, floppy disk, tape, or flash memory etc. except for it is being a PCMCIA card.

Wilska et al. disclose a portable data collecting and data processing device comprising a PCMCIA card.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to use a PCMCIA card as the memory device for the purpose of improving data processing.

Claims 4, 5, 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gorden.

Regarding claims 4, 5, 15 and 16, Gorden disclose that the display device may be any well known type of devices [para [0058]] except for explicitly specifying it is a color liquid display which has a backlit display with brightness control for easy viewing.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to use a color liquid display which has a backlit with brightness control for the purpose of personalizing viewing references.

Conclusion

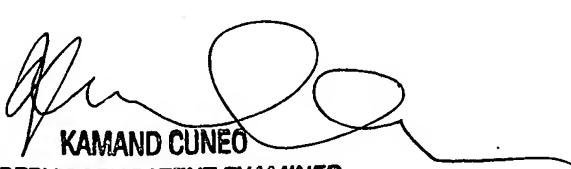

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Jung-Sun [US 4,498,787]; Tyree [US 5,369,797]; Steinbach [US 6,483,782].
